【到達目標】

Although the class will be mostly conducted in English it is not an English language class. Rather, students will use English in class to discuss contemporary issues critically and creatively. This class is therefore about active learning and active critical thinking.

【授業の概要】

We will look mostly TV documentaries in the first semester.

This class considers the visual representations and images of "Japan", transcultural Japan and "Japaneseness" in 20th century documentary, art, manga, anime, music, news, literature and TV. We will look at both representations of "Japan" and Japaneseness from both inside and outside Japan to challenge and deconstruct prevalent racist, gender, classist and sexist stereotypes about Japaneseness.

This class - to be conducted in English - is a unique chance for international students and Japanese students with English competence to work together in a friendly, collaborative, student-centered and discussion-focused setting. As all students will interact on group projects, students must participate actively in class.
